WHAT IS LONG LIFE?

A certain Turkish gentleman who claims he is 156 years old is visiting in New York for the double purpose of getting a new set of teeth and of procuring a sixth wife.

The attention that New York society and the New York press are paying this Turk because he has possibly attained the age of 156 is somewhat disproportionate to the importance of the feat.

There is, of course, a great deal of credit coming to the man who, by virtue of sensible living and a knowledge of health mechanics, manages to postpone his own funeral.

But such a person should not be regarded as a prodigy because this funeral postponement is something that everybody can accomplish and should accomplish.

The mere fact of reaching 156 years is unimportant because it is not years that make long life, but the right kind of living.

It is conceivable that a highly intelligent man or a man closely attuned to the harmony of nature may live more and longer in a single day than some poor wretched coddle would live in fifty years.

In the two or three days that Shakespeare took to produce some of his comedies, he probably lived longer than the average of mankind in his whole lifetime.

Life is not a matter of years or of centuries. It is a measurement of productive thought.

This Turkish tourist in New York may be little more than a child.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS

The stories of dogs who lay shivering in the rain or crying plaintively under the stars, hugging the slim green mound which held one whom they idolized, took up a good many pages in the old school reading books. Children read them, learning not only the pronunciation of words, but the meaning of loyalty. And dogs are really loyal more than we are.

We wonder if the man in a distant city who prepared a terrible punishment for a dog the other day didn't know this. Apparently he didn't.

He kept on throwing more and more dirt into a hole where he had placed the little animal.

BROADCASTS FROM CANADIAN ROCKIES

The Canadian National Railway has blazed a pioneer trail in Canadian radio broadcasting and it again made history with the transcontinental broadcast from Jasper Park Lodge, Jasper National Park, on the occasion of the opening of the lodge for the season. This was the first broadcast to be made from Jasper. It was the first time a radio programme has found its origin in the Canadian Rockies. Irvin Plumm and his Jasper Park Lodge Orchestra, which has just commenced its sixth summer engagement at the Lodge, supplied the instrumental music for the historic broadcast. Madame Gladys Bell Owen, of Regina, who was the principal soprano in the New York production of "The Miracle" and Sydney J. Bracken, of Edmonton, were the soloists.

The illustration above shows Irvin Plumm and his Jasper Park Lodge Orchestra, a Canadian National Railway observation car equipped with combination radio and phonograph, the automobile, and the "Bike", Jasper Park Lodge.

He packed it harder and harder, until finally the dog was buried under a pile of dirt. He covered, and he couldn't see the dog's eyes. Just the nose was left. The dog could breathe. He was merely alive in the ground.

Then the man went away, trying the same method of neighbors, hearing the dog's punishment and training with cries, came, found the nose, and this puppy dug the animal out.

The dog had been digging that there are people in the holes in his yard, the owner ex-world who still viciously inflicts suffering on animals. But occasionally we have to wonder if there aren't some people who might profit a little by a few hours of the same, say, burial with merely their noses exposed.

GOOD BOOKS

A survey of the great volume of new books that make their appearance annually is apt to be a little bit discouraging. Many fine and notable books are produced, of course; but a great deal of the most popular fiction is more trashy than it is good.

However, there is a brighter side to it. The "Everyman's Library" editions of classics which his firm prints enjoys a sale of 1,000,000 a year; and Mr. Macrae remarks:

"New books are given at least 90 per cent. of the publicity, of the advertising, of the sale, of the effort, of the cost, of all this we find that old Shakespeare and many of his friends go severely along out-sold 90 per cent. of the new books in the year."

A New York book seller, he says, reports that "Everyman's Library" books are in demand as Shakespeare's "Tragedies," "David Copperfield," "Dickens," "Comedies," "Don Quixote," "Dostoevsky," "The Red and the White," "The Republic," in the order named.

The general level of intelligence of the reading public is not quite so low as the popular fiction might make one think. There is still a big market for

STAND OFF WOMEN'S INSTITUTE MEETING

Stand Off Women's Institute held a most successful meeting last night. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Wm. Alcock, Macleod.

There were 25 members and visitors present, as usual a most enjoyable and interesting afternoon was spent by the ladies.

Miss Rose Killoran, teacher, was convener and was responsible for the programme. Mrs. E. Greenwald, the official constituency convener, was one of the visitors, and she gave a splendid address, talking as her subject the "Modern Wife," in closing her address, Mrs. Greenwald complimented in most complimentary terms, the Stand Off Ladies, for the extraordinary enthusiasm and splendid work which their Institute as an organization had done for the community since they had organized.

Of their large membership, gathered from a wide district, of interesting and instructive exercises which they had discussed at their meeting and the great change in the social life of the district, by bringing together the women of the farm, who before never had an opportunity of meeting each other.

To note the interest taken by the members in the meetings, Miss Eda Johnson, came specially from Waterton National Park, where she is holidaying, to attend this meeting.

Miss Eileen Murphy, gave a humorous reading entitled "Teaching a Man How to Waltz." A vocal duet was well rendered by Miss Nellie Alcock and Miss E. Parsons. Miss W. Hovis, read an original "Ode to a Kitchen can fire," written by Mrs. Donahue while visiting Waterton National Park.

Mrs. Walter Lyst in her usual ready style gave a reading entitled "Wheat." Miss Killoran concluded the program with a splendid paper on "Immigration," in which she dealt in a most interesting manner, with many phases of this, especially at the present time, very important subject.

A matter which is of great importance to the districts represented by the Institute is discussed at this meeting. The need for such a Hall had been suggested by the Institute some time ago, and the matter has been taken up in earnest and meetings for organization are being held. From the discussion at this meeting, the ladies of the Institute are backing the project, to the full extent of their resources.

The usual refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Alcock and a number of assistants, bringing to a close a most delightful afternoon.

FROZEN APPLES

A new wrinkle in apple marketing which provides the zestful delight of fresh apple pie to the jaded palate of the summer tourist is announced in the latest Cold Storage News letter of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. By a new process developed by E. W. Elwell of Chicago, known as the Kazer Patent, apples are frozen and held in storage at a low temperature, from the harvest season until the summer months when the apple is scarce.

Briefly described, the Kazer process applies to some procedure for curing and curing apples for pies. The fruit is peeled and sliced in the approved fashion and it is then treated with the patent solution, being dried three times in specially designed tanks. It is then packed in regulation apple boxes and placed in a freezer. By the dipping process the fruit retains its flavor and color—it does not turn brown. It is of the same quality as the fresh

The many friends of Mr. Boyle of Granum, will hear with regret of his being a patient in the Clarendon hospital. The accident occurred on Monday morning about nine o'clock when Mr. Boyle was painting a roof, the ladder on which he was standing slipped, hurling him to the ground. He was immediately rushed to Clarendon hospital for X-ray examination. Drs. Cohen of Granum, and Lyster of Clarendon, after consultation decided to call Dr. McNab of Calgary. Mrs. Frank Sandgathe of Calgary, daughter of Mr. Boyle and Dr. McNab were with him. After a thorough examination it was found the fifth vertebrae was dislocated and possibly fractured. The doctors have pronounced the case most serious and Mr. Boyle will rest in Clarendon hospital for a day or two before being taken to Calgary for further treatment.

HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION—PLEASE DO NOT SIFT

We have placed the title for this article in the form of a request rather than of a command or a threat. It might be regarded as a plea for the protection of children. It would be in the interests of all but it is the children who are neglected, thoughtless or ignorant individuals who spit promiscuously.

The terms of disease live and multiply in the human body. A person may have such terms in his body and yet be unaware of it. There are thousands of persons with tuberculosis, but there is no reason for fearing it as long as it is confined to the body in which it is found.

The germs leave the body in its secretions, and the most common way is in the secretions of the mouth and nose. Mouth and nose secretions should always be thought of as containing disease germs, and should be avoided accordingly. There is no reason for fearing it as long as it is confined to the body in which it is found.

TRAIN TELEPHONE NOW A FACT

The Canadian National Railway, which first made possible the reception of radio signals on board a moving train, an invention which many first class railroads have since copied, have achieved another mechanical triumph by perfecting the first two-way train telephone communication in the world with moving trains. The system has been put into public service by the company on "The International Limited," which carries the 231 miles separating Montreal and Toronto in 300 minutes, the fastest train in the world traversing a long distance.

The photograph shows Sir Henry Thornton, Chairman and President of the Canadian National Railway, inaugurating the telephone service on "The International Limited" while the train is travelling at 60 miles per hour. At the train switchboard is J. C. Burkholder, Chief Engineer of the Canadian National Telephone, who developed and perfected the train telephone system.

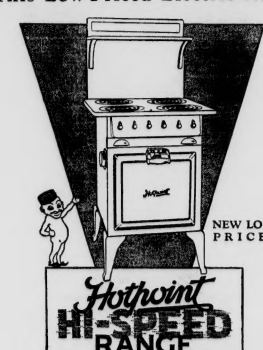

should never be started. If it adults should put their fingers into their mouths, then it into their mouths, but it takes should be broken without delay to train children not to do so. It is not only disgusting to other people, but it constitutes a very real danger to them.

In the act of spitting, droplets are sprayed around, and as other individuals come in contact with these droplets, they are exposed to infection by the germs of disease from which the spitter may suffer. Most of the common communicable diseases are spread chiefly by such droplet infection, and the danger that results from the spraying around of sputum and saliva cannot be exaggerated because of its ease of transmission.

Sputum on the floor or on the ground is dangerous. Children must and will play and while they play, they are constantly on the floor or on the sidewalk or ground. As a result, their hands are sure to be soiled if the hapless user of the spittoon does not wash his hands. It is, of course, true that neither children nor neighbor.

SILOS FOR THE WEST

The silo is a valuable means for storing feed for winter use or to supplement the pastures in spring and fall. By properly feeding the silage, particularly at the edges, when filling, and by removing six inches per day, a succulent nutritious feed is available all seasons of the year, with very little waste.

Each year is marked by the erection of a few more silos in the Prairie Provinces but unfortunately the number is not as large as is warranted by the success which attends their use. At the Dominion Experimental Station, Lacombe, Alberta, three general types of silos, the above-ground, the pit and the trench, have been used for a number of years with such excellent results that we have no hesitation in recommending them to anyone keeping a number of live stock.

The above-ground wood silo gives satisfaction as far as it can be given in this climate of cold winters. Freezing is the great drawback. Where it is built in the open excessive freezing can be prevented by blowing a straw stack around it at threshing time and the straw can be used for bedding in the spring and summer. A silo in diameter by 36 feet high holds about 150 tons of feed.

In sections where the water line is far below the surface of the soil silos might be used. They are no easier to fill and more difficult to get the ensilage out of since a hoist must be used, but they have the advantage of being permanent structures since the farmer's main outlay is in the form of labor and the ensilage does not freeze.

One of the desirable features of the trench silo is its low cost. Any farmer could make one with practically no cash outlay. A few days with a team and some old straw will do as a cover. During filling the ensilage should be kept as tight as possible and tramped.

The usual depth of the trench silo is 8 feet. A width of 14 feet at the top and 10 feet at the bottom is the usual width. A herd of 15 cows will require a 50 foot trench silo. A trench silo should be located near the barn and the silage should be fed directly from the silo.

Meanwhile, Crassus parked his fire brigade in the shrubbery, out of sight, and the distressed owner of the burning home dashed out, thinking it a total loss. Crassus stroked into a fire company, and lamented suitably and made the owner a small offer for the salvage.

This accepted, he blew a whistle. The fire ladders rushed out and stopped the fire. Crassus got a good many fine homes, partly secured, at low rates.

The record stops there. One may hope they finally caught Crassus and fed him to the lions—but, in the light of modern experience, it doesn't seem likely.

RACKETEERING IN OLD

ROME

Although we're inclined to look on the racketeer as a modern development, he is

thousands of years old.

Dr. William Stearns Davis,

an historian, has discovered in ancient Roman records the story of a "crassus" racketeer

with a rather unusual career.

Crassus got together about a score of his slaves and drilled them into a fire company. He sent one of them around to discovery and set fire to his expensive home he happened to own.

Meanwhile, Crassus parked

his fire brigade in the shrubbery, out of sight, and the distressed owner of the burning home dashed out, thinking

it a total loss. Crassus stroked into a fire company, and lamented suitably and made the owner a small offer for the salvage.

This accepted, he blew a whistle. The fire ladders rushed out and stopped the fire.

Crassus got a good many fine

homes, partly secured, at low rates.

The record stops there. One may hope they finally caught

Crassus and fed him to the lions—but, in the light of modern experience, it doesn't seem likely.

THEY TAKE IT OUT OF

THEIR STOCKINGS

It is well known that the peasants of France are thrifty.

According to Monsieur Bal-

baud, a Frenchman recently

visiting Canada, there is no

unemployment problem in France, and the peasants are both "eating well and drinking well." For years even during the war, according to this gentleman, the peasants have been very carefully guarded by

"keeping their stockings" rather than send it out to invest. The result is that standards of living are very much higher than they were before the war.

"Now," says Davis, "the

peasants have motor cars

and are very much more indicated that they go down in the stockings on occasion.

Of course machine guns are dangerous in the hands of disloyal men, and it is the army manufacturers must live.
